Message from the President of the Parliamentary Assembly of the Council of Europe

On 22 and 23 May 2008, the Presidents of European Parliaments will meet in Strasbourg to discuss two key issues for our democratic societies. The first is the relationship between parliaments and civil society, the second the role that parliaments play in promoting the Council of Europe's fundamental values – democracy, human rights and the rule of law.

Why these subjects?

The first was chosen because it is essential that parliaments continue to embody the “voice of the people”. It is not enough today for them simply to reflect the various political ideologies. They must be in touch with society. Parliamentary debates must reflect the concerns and the aspirations of civil society and all citizens.

The challenges that our societies face are increasingly complex, including climate change, the fight against terrorism and social cohesion, but they concern us all, because we live in a multi-relational, multicultural and multi-faith world. The only way to meet these challenges is for parliamentarians and civil society representatives to work together.

The second subject stemmed from the idea that in this era of globalisation, media expansion and advanced technology, Europe must progress but must also keep its human side. To be in the forefront of efforts to promote modernity, competition and prosperity, but also social and cultural development, it must above all be a leading force when it comes to the Council of Europe's fundamental values of democracy, human rights and the rule of law. The parliamentary system originated in Europe and it is still one of the key components of democracy. So it makes sense for us to discuss how parliaments can help to reinforce these values throughout Europe.

The European Conference of Presidents of Parliament is an opportunity for us to exchange our views, ideas and experiences in both these areas at the highest level, as well as to familiarise ourselves with existing good practices and projects already under way.

In a world in constant flux, this conference will allow us to prove that parliaments listen to what citizens have to say and are capable of adapting to our changing society.

The Parliamentary Assembly of the Council of Europe is the political manifestation of national parliaments' desire to help to build Europe. By bringing together the Presidents of Parliament of the Council of Europe's 47 member states, it hopes to promote dialogue, focusing on the common values on which the Council of Europe is founded, and hence to bring parliaments ever closer to the public.

List of Speakers

Participants can register with the Conference secretariat (Office 1.081, first floor).

The order of the Speakers will be determined by a drawing of lots organised on the eve of the Conference. The list thus established will be distributed soon after to allow the Speakers to know when they will be called to address the Conference.

Speakers registering after the drawing of lots will be added to that list in the order in which they have registered.

Working languages

Conference documents will be available in English and French.

Simultaneous interpretation into English, French, German, Italian and Russian will be provided.

Delegates with prepared speeches are requested to provide the Conference secretariat with a copy in advance to facilitate interpretation.

Documentation

Reports and other documents on the work of the Council of Europe will be available at the Documentation Counter on the first floor.

Information technology

The Council of Europe Wifi service allows external users, who are on the Council's premises and in possession of a Wifi compatible laptop or PDA, to obtain a wireless connection to the Internet free of charge when they are in the areas covered by the Wifi access points : 5th floor (parliamentary delegations offices) and 1st floor (Chamber level).

The sign  indicates an access point. Wifi id is WISP.
